General Gough and Brigadier-General Gough (x). They are brothers.

Colonel MacEwen.

Sir Arthur arriving at the War Office.

Men of the Bedfordshire Regiment arriving at Enniskillen. Note the Union Jacks flying from the houses.

"It must be remembered that the General Officer Commanding His Majesty's Forces in Ireland (General Sir Arthur Paget) had just been at the War Office the day before, and came back to Ireland and stated that he had received instructions that Ulster would be in a blaze by Saturday." These words were used by Mr. Bonar Law in a sensational statement in the House of Commons yesterday during the debate which arose on the resignation of the Army officers in Ireland. Sir Arthur was at the War Office yesterday, while among the other visitors were officers who, it was reported, had resigned. They included General Gough, Brigadier-General Gough and Colonel MacEwen.

The Editor invites you to discover the name of the railway station represented by each picture.

First of all, look at the example. You will see that the picture shows a horn and a castle. The correct answer is Horncastle.

Now write clearly, in ink, under each picture the name of the railway station you think it represents. Only one name is allowed under each picture. Then fill in your name and address. Cut out the pictures and entry form and retain them (together with the others that will appear each week in Pearson's Weekly) until the end of the competition. PREMIER SAYS OFFICERS HAVE RETURNED TO POSTS.

Resignations "Were Due to a Misunderstanding."

"ULSTER IN BLAZE."

Startling Document Read by Mr. Bonar Law in Commons.

MR. BALFOUR'S QUERY.

General Gough had resigned because he said he would not fight against Ulster, and he had been reinstated though he still said he would not fight against Ulster.

That shows that the Government's attempt at coercion has failed.

In a thronged and excited House of Commons Mr. Balfour used these outspoken words last night after Mr. Asquith had made an important statement on the military situation in Ulster and the resignation of officers.

Mr. Asquith said that the Army Council was satisfied and the officers were satisfied that there had been a misunderstanding. The officers had returned to their posts.

A sensational statement was made by Mr. Bonar Law. He read a report of a statement said to have been made by Sir A. Paget, general officer commanding in Ireland, that active preparations were to begin in Ulster.

This was denied later by Mr. Asquith, who said that no instructions of any sort or kind to justify such a statement had been issued from the War Office.

In the House of Lords to-day Lord Middleton will put down a motion asking for papers indicating precisely what instructions were given by the War Office to Sir A. Paget.

The possibility of a general election in July was generally discussed in the lobby last night.

It was suggested that the Government propose to expedite the progress of both the Home Rule and the Welsh Disestablishment Bills in order that when these Bills have received the Royal Assent an appeal to the country may be made.

Sir Edward Carson, commenting at Belfast last night on yesterday's debate, said: "Hour by hour I am becoming more impressed with the Government's message of peace to Ulster."

"AMAZING TRIFLING."

The floor of the House and the side galleries were packed in every corner, when, at the close of questions, Mr. Bonar Law rose and asked whether the Premier would move the adjournment of the House to enable the situation in Ulster to be discussed.

Mr. Asquith said it was unusual proceeding to interrupt business in that way, but if Mr. Bonar Law still wished it after Colonel Seely's statement he would do as requested.

Regarding the movement of troops, Colonel Seely detailed the movements which have already been made public in the past, and said the reason for these movements was the necessity for protecting arms, ammunition, stores and other property.

All these movements had been made on the instructions of the general officer commanding.

Mr. Bonar Law said this was one of the most amazing instances of trifling with the House and the country of which they had had an instance.

The position was far more serious than Colonel Seely's statement would lead them to suppose. A new danger had arisen.

A danger had apparently come upon the Government as a bolt from the blue.

In spite of the assertion to the contrary, the danger in the Army was not confined to the cavalry brigade concerned; the infantry regiments were also affected.

The movement of troops was provocative. If it was a precautionary measure, why had the Government not taken it several months ago? If that had been done there would have been no suggestion that there was provocation.

Mr. Bonar Law was proceeding to read a letter showing the existence of a similar position in the infantry regiments, when Sir William Byles interrupted. He was assailed by Unionist cries of: "Sit down Pro-Boer! Peace at any price!"

"COUNTRY IN A BLAZE."

A sensational statement was then made by Mr. Bonar Law.

The Opposition leader said he had permission to read a statement taken down of what was said by the General Officer Commanding the troops in Ireland to his commanding officers.

Sir Arthur Paget said that active operations were begun against Ulster, and that he expected the country to be in a blaze by Saturday, that he had been in close communication with the War Office, and had the following instructions from the War Office to convey to officers:

Officers domiciled in Ulster will be able to "disappear," and will be reinstated in their positions, but they must give their word of honour that they would not fight for Ulster.

Officers who are not prepared to undertake active operations against Ulster for conscientious or other scruples were to send in their resignations, and would be dismissed from the Army, and it was to be understood that the officers, brigadiers and commanding officers who avoided service on the incorrect plea of domicile in Ulster would be tried by court-martial.

The general officer commanding His Majesty's forces in Ireland, continued Mr. Bonar Law, had been to the War Office the day before. He goes back to Ireland, and there states that he had received instructions which would put Ulster in a blaze by Saturday, and which were to direct military operations against Ulster.

Contingent of Royal Irish Constabulary entraining for Londonderry.

ceived instructions which would put Ulster in a blaze by Saturday, and which were to direct military operations against Ulster.

"It seems to me," commented Mr. Bonar Law, "utterly inconceivable that any Secretary of State for War could have failed to give to a commanding officer in such circumstances explicit instructions, and give them in writing."

Mr. Asquith, who formally moved the adjournment, said that in view of the doctrines laid down by Mr. Bonar Law, it was eminently desirable that the House of Commons and the country should realise what was the main issue that was being presented.

The duties of the Army to the civil power were very simple, very intelligible, and hitherto had never been contested.

It was the duty of the Army when called upon to protect military property and stores in any area where there was ground for apprehending any special risk.

Proceeding, Mr. Asquith said that so far back as December last instructions were given to general officers pointing out that it might be their duty to come to the aid of the civil power and that they were to be prepared for any eventuality which lay within the duty of officers.

If any officer were domiciled in the area of disturbance he would be excused from taking part in the area of the disturbance.

Continuing, the Premier said that the general officer emphatically denied using such language as had been read by Mr. Bonar Law.

Mr. Asquith stated that General Gough was returning to his brigade.

The Premier added that the officers concerned and the Army Council were both satisfied that there had been a misunderstanding.

"The brigadier and the officers when it was pointed out to them what were their duties returned to their duties."

"On what conditions?" asked Mr. Bonar Law amid general uproar.

MR. BALFOUR AMAZED.

Mr. Asquith replied: All that was demanded from the War Office was that if and when the order should be given that they should be ready to do what lay within the sphere of an officer's duties they would do it. General Gough and the officers had returned to their posts.

Excitement reached fever point and cries of "Under what conditions?" were hurled at the Premier.

To this Mr. Asquith emphatically replied: They had it pointed out to them what was their duty, and they expressed their willingness to do it.

If there had been any intention of a coercive movement against Ulster the steps which had been taken in the movement of troops were the last steps which would have been taken.

Regarding General Gough, who was one of the most distinguished cavalry officers they had, it was a fact that he and some of the officers commanding interpreted the observations and questions put to them by Sir A. Paget in a wider sense than they were intended to convey.

Mr. Balfour, who followed, said he was amazed at both parts of the Prime Minister's speech. It seemed to him that Mr. Asquith utterly misunderstood both the events which he had been trying to explain, and the situation with which the citizens of this country were now faced in consequence of the insane policy of the Government.

While Mr. Asquith came down to the House of Commons with the fire engine to put down the conflagration he sent two colleagues down to the country who cut the mains and destroyed the water supply.

THE KING SEES HIS GENERALS.

The King's deep interest in the crisis is shown by the number of audiences he has granted. Yesterday His Majesty received at Buckingham Palace:—

Colonel Seely, Secretary of State for War.
General Sir O'Moore Creagh, late Commander-in-Chief of India.
General Sir Arthur Paget, Commander-in-Chief of the Forces in Ireland.
Field-Marshal Sir John French.

In the last three days the King has seen Colonel Seely and General French three times, and His Majesty has also seen the Premier, Earl Roberts and the Archbishop of Canterbury.

When the leaders of a nation meet in secret conclave behind closed doors the atmosphere in the streets without immediately becomes momentous. So it was with the crowds in Whitehall yesterday.

Here was General Sir Arthur Paget, the Commander-in-Chief of the Forces in Ireland, arriving at the War Office. He had travelled all night. Another early caller was General Gough.

Ministers began to arrive. First came Mr. Burns, quite unconcerned and breezy in his blue reefer suit. Then Mr. Lewis Harcourt, debonair, in an electric brougham; then Lord Haldane in a hurry. Colonel Seely and Mr. Churchill entered by a back entrance.

The Cabinet was now in consultation. Presently the doors of 10, Downing-street, opened, and—every time they opened the crowd seemed to expect some sensational disclosure—a taxicab was summoned for Colonel Seely.

The War Minister was going to see the King. The people peered at him through the windows of the cab. They tried to read his face. He was composed, so the women said he looked "very grave."

While the War Minister was reporting the trend of events to the Sovereign the rest of the Cabinet remained in consultation.

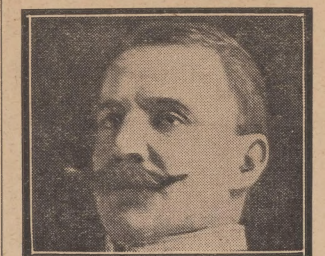

ULSTER GUARD DON KHAKI.

Fifty men of the West Belfast Regiment of Ulster volunteers, who marched to Craigavon last night to relieve the guard at Sir Edward Carson's headquarters, wore khaki uniforms, khaki caps and regulation puttees for the first time since the formation of the volunteers.

SIR P. SASSOON'S DENIAL.

Sir Philip Sassoon, M.P., states that there is no foundation for the statement that he had promised to equip a ship to carry contingents of the Kent National Reserve to Ulster.

MAJOR RESIGNS HIS COMMISSION.

Major G. Harland Bowden, the officer commanding the 1st Herts Battery, R.F.A., at St. Albans, who has asked to be relieved of his command "owing to the position of affairs in Ireland." He is the prospective Unionist candidate for North-East Derbyshire.

THE LATEST AND SMARTEST BEAUTY RECIPES COLLECTED FROM VARIOUS EXPERT BEAUTY WRITERS.

What Women Hate.

"Helpful Gossip."

Every woman hates a shiny nose and a dull or greasy complexion. Few know that there is an instantaneous remedy at hand in the home, one that is absolutely harmless, and that defies detection even under the closest scrutiny. If you have no clemite in the house get about an ounce from your chemist, and add just sufficient water to dissolve it. A little of this lotion applied to the face will instantly cause the greasiness to disappear, and the skin will have a perfectly natural, velvety, youthful bloom that any woman might envy. The effect will last for many hours, and no powder is required, even under the most trying conditions, indoors or out. To prepare the face, neck and arms for a long evening in a hot ballroom nothing can compare with this simple home-made lotion. * * * To make the eyelashes grow long, dark and curling, apply a little mennaline with the finger-tips occasionally. It is absolutely harmless and beautifies the eyebrows as well.

"Wavy" Shampoos.

"Homely Hints."

Few people know that stallax can be used as a shampoo and is far better than anything else for the purpose. It seems to have a natural affinity for the hair, leaving it very glossy, fluffy and with a pronounced natural "wave." A teaspoonful of stallax granules, dissolved in a cup of hot water, is more than sufficient. Genuine stallax comes to the chemist only in sealed 4lb. tins, a quantity sufficient to make up twenty-five or thirty shampoos. The indescribable lustre it imparts to the hair is quite inimitable.

To Kill Roots of Superfluous Hair.

"Home Science."

Women annoyed with disfiguring growths of superfluous hair wish to know not merely how to temporarily remove the hair, but how to kill the hair roots permanently. For this purpose pure powdered phenol may be applied directly to the objectionable growth. The recommended treatment is designed not only to instantly remove the hair, but also to actually kill the roots so that the growth will not return. About an ounce of phenol, obtainable from the chemist, should be sufficient.

The Real Cause of Most Bad Complexions.

"Health and Beauty."

It is an accepted fact that no truly beautiful complexion ever came out of jars and bottles, and the longer one uses cosmetics the worse the complexion becomes. Skin, to be healthy, must breathe. It also must expel, through the pores, its share of the body's effete material. Creams and powders clog the pores, interfering both with elimination and breathing. If more women understood this there would be fewer self-ruined complexions. If they would use ordinary mercerised wax instead of cosmetics they would have natural, healthy complexions.

About Hair Tonics.

"Novel Recipes."

Each week almost one hears of some wonderful discovery for improving the hair, and although this paragraph may seem a little superfluous, an old-fashioned recipe may come as a welcome change. One thing about it is that it will grow hair, and also prevent it falling out. From your chemist get an original package of boranum, to this add 4-pint of bay rum, allow it to stand 30 minutes, then add sufficient water to make half a pint. Rub briskly into the scalp with the finger-tips and you will immediately experience that clean tingling sensation which is a sure sign of healthy action.

"NO IDEA HE IS MARRIED."

Man Who Speaks Baby Language Brings Annulment Suit.

"PETER QUI" AND "QUOI!"

He has not got the slightest idea that he is married at the present moment.

This remarkable statement was made with regard to a petitioner by his counsel, Mr. F. E. Smith, K.C., in the Divorce Court yesterday.

Mr. Peter Paspasi, of Liverpool, who is sixty-five years old, was asking through his guardian, Mrs. Cornelius, for a decree of annulment of his marriage on the ground that he was mentally incapable of understanding the marriage contract.

The marriage took place in September, 1912, at Birkenhead. (Photograph on page 16.)

BABY LANGUAGE AT SIXTY-FIVE.

Mr. F. E. Smith said that Mr. Paspasi was the son of a very well-known Liverpool merchant, who had been intimately connected with the business of Messrs. Ralli Brothers. When he was a baby Mr. Paspasi suffered from convulsions, and has all his life been mentally deficient.

He could speak a few words, a mixture of French and English, but he spoke in baby language and made signs and noises that were intelligible only to those who knew him.

As a specimen of the language that Mr. Paspasi could understand, counsel quoted from a letter written to him by his wife:—

Alma, very sorry to hear Peter-oui, tres mauvais. — Alma, very sorry.

Mr. Smith, continuing, said:—

Mr. Paspasi was not allowed to travel by train alone. He had to be managed like a child and was given up as a hopeless case at twenty.

In order that he might believe that he was engaged in some useful work, he was received into the office of Messrs. Ralli Brothers. He was paid £250 a year as pocket-money, although he was not employed in the office, went on Mr. Smith, who had a great influence over Mr. Paspasi.

The letter followed:—

Some thirteen years ago, Mr. Smith then said, Mr. Paspasi became infatuated with a woman named Alma Evans. This woman in 1904 had a child, and in 1909 another child, of which she said Mr. Paspasi was the father.

When interviewed the woman stated she had married Mr. Paspasi in September, 1912. A marriage certificate was produced.

It was at this point that Mr. Smith declared that Paspasi had no idea that he was married during this visit to Birkenhead.

Having conducted his opening, counsel said that he would put Mr. Paspasi into the witness-box, and the Court could then judge if he was capable of understanding what an oath meant.

The card on which the oath was set out was handed to Mr. Paspasi, who was told by Mr. Moschis, standing in front of the witness-box, to read it. Mr. Paspasi did so and kept smiling as Mr. Moschis spoke to him.

"PETER QUI!"

Mr. Moschis used a strange mixture of French and English when he proceeded to attempt to put before the witness counsel's questions. He began most of his questions with "Peter qui" or "Peter quoi."

Mr. F. E. Smith asked Mr. Paspasi whether he was married, and the question was conveyed by Mr. Moschis with the help of the French word "Marie!"

"He says, 'Never,'" said the interpreter after Mr. Paspasi had smiled and muttered something.

Some books in the office of Messrs. Ralli having been put before the witness, Mr. Hume Williams, K.C., cross-examining, asked if they contained his handwriting.

"Ici, oui," he said, after the interpreter had spoken to him, beginning, "Peter quoi?"

A letter written by Mr. Paspasi to Mrs. Alma Evans was then put before the witness, and he was asked to whom it was written.

After pointing to himself as the writer of the letter, Mr. Paspasi said something. "He replies 'Alma,'" said the interpreter.

Counsel: Ask him who Alma was.

The Interpreter: Peter, qui Alma?

"Oui," said Mr. Paspasi.

Two officials belonging to the registrar's office there were asked to come forward, and questions were put to Mr. Paspasi about what happened when he was married.

PLEASED WITH JUDGE.

The interpreter said that he was asked to sign the register by "Monsieur Anglais."

Counsel: Ask him why he and Alma signed.

The Interpreter: He says: "Je ne sais pas" (I do not know).

A promissory note for £250 was then put before him. This he signed readily.

The President: Ask him if I may keep it.

The Interpreter: He says "Yes." (Laughter.)

Counsel: Does he know who the Judge is?

The Interpreter: He says the Judge is good.

The President: He is very pleased with me.

Mr. John Edwin Olive, superintendent registrar at Wirral, Birkenhead, said he remembered the marriage on September 2, 1912.

Mr. Smith: I suppose you did not know there was anything abnormal about these people?—No, except that the man had an impediment in his speech.

When asked to repeat after the witness that there was no impediment to the marriage, Mr. Paspasi made a noise which witness could not understand.

Then witness said he would read the words, and the lady translated them.

Mr. Smith: She may have been talking about the weather for all you knew?—He seemed to follow the lady better than me.

His Lordship: Did you hear him pronounce a single word of the ceremony?—I did not understand him. That was the difficulty.

The hearing was adjourned.

SIR PERCY SCOTT WEDS.

Admiral Inventor of Big Gun Carriages Quietly Married in London.

The wedding took place yesterday, very quietly, of Admiral Sir Percy Scott and Mrs. Wilmot, of 12, Sloane-gate-mansions, the third daughter of Mr. Ramsey Dennis.

It was by the express wish of the bride and bridegroom that the time and place of the wedding was known to only a few intimate friends.

The bride wore no bridal robes, but was simply gowned in her travelling dress.

After the wedding Sir Percy and Lady Scott left for the Continent for the honeymoon.

Sir Percy Scott has had an exciting career. Entering the Navy at the age of thirteen, he served in the Ashanti war by the time he was twenty, and at the age of twenty-two, during the Congo expedition, he was mentioned in dispatches and gained special promotion.

He also saw service in Egypt in 1882, and during the South African war rendered valuable work by inventing the gun carriages which enabled the 6in. and 4.7in. guns to be used in South Africa.

Sir Percy is also the inventor of night signalling apparatus now used in the Royal Navy, and of various appliances for improving heavy-gun shooting. Sir Percy retired in 1913. He is sixty years of age. (Photographs on page 11.)

PIRATES' MERRY JEST.

Pilot Drowned by Dutchmen Lest He Should Accuse Them of Treachery.

Thrilling stories of ancient cruelties and vast ambitions were told last night by Mr. Basil Thomson in the course of a lecture at the Royal Geographical Society on "Lost Explorers of the Pacific."

There is a touch of savagely genial humour in the story of a Spanish pilot captured by Van Noort.

Becoming ill, he believed that the Dutch wanted to sink him, and therefore it is recorded that the explorers' journal, "we threw him into the sea, leaving him to sink to the end that he should not ever again reproach us with any treachery."

An instance of the wild dreams with which their discoveries filled the Spaniards is given in the case of Quiros, who, in 1605, with Torres, discovered the New Hebrides group.

In the belief that it was a continuous coastline, and that he had discovered a new continent, he took possession in the names of the Church, of the Pope, and of the King of "all those regions of the south as far as the Pole for ever and so long as lights exist."

There were treacherous and High Mass and fireworks, but, unfortunately, the hostility of the natives put an end to the settlement after thirty-five days.

IS MR. DIESEL ALIVE?

PARIS, March 23.—A telegram from Berlin to the Matin states that, according to a report emanating from Munich, Mr. Diesel, the German inventor, who disappeared mysteriously some months ago, is alive and is now in Canada.—Central News.

Dr. Rudolf Diesel, it will be remembered, was supposed to have fallen overboard from the Great Eastern steamer Dresden, which crossed from Antwerp to Harwich on the night of September 30, 1913.

Dr. Diesel had his trials in the early days of his inventions, but later his patent rights regarding the Diesel oil engine were sold for huge sums.

On October 14, at a meeting of Dr. Diesel's creditors, the financial failure of the doctor was reported.

MURDER SCREENED BY FIRE?

NAPLES, March 23.—Suspensions have been aroused that Professor Mercalli, the director of Vesuvius Observatory, who was burned to death, as was reported at the time, by the upsetting of a paraffin lamp in his house, was really murdered by thieves.

It appears that the sum of £280 was stolen, and it is believed that the thieves poured petroleum over the body and set it on fire in order to conceal their crime.—Reuter.

BABY FOUND BURIED ON HAMPSTEAD HEATH.

The grave on Hampstead Heath in which a three-months-old baby was found buried. Lying by it is a branch torn from the tree with which, presumably, the hole was dug. A man and a woman stand charged in connection with the affair.—("Daily Mirror" photograph.)

SECRET GRAVE ON HEATH FOR BABY.

Man's Story of a Burial Under a Tree at Hampstead.

COUPLE CHARGED.

Hampstead Heath was the scene of a tragic discovery yesterday, when the body of a three-months-old baby was found buried at a spot on Hampstead Heath, near the Spaniards-road.

The body was found under a tree, a short distance below the ground.

Early on Sunday evening last a woman named Childs went to the Kensal Town Police Station and reported that a man named Cameron was missing.

Cameron, she said, had with him a three-months-old child.

Acting on this information, a man named Archibald Cameron was detained by the police on Sunday night in Kensal Town.

The finding of the child's body had a sequel at the Marylebone Police Court yesterday, when Archibald Cameron, aged forty-five, a navy, and Sarah Childs, aged thirty-one, a married woman, of Hawley-crescent, Camden Town, were charged on suspicion of causing the death of the latter's three-months-old child.

Divisional Detective-Inspector Neal stated that at 4.30 a.m. yesterday he saw the prisoners detained at the Kensal Town Police Station.

The female prisoner told him, he said, that the man was not her husband, but they had lived together for the last two days at Hawley-crescent, and that about 5.30 on Sunday she left him and the child in the house. Her statement continued:—

"I was out about half an hour, and on my return I met him leaving the house."

"I did not know what he was going to do. He said, 'I have thought I was going to leave you and I followed him and kept asking him what was the matter. I followed him up Kensal Town-road, along Dartmouth Park-hill and across Parliament Fields. He ran away and I lost sight of him. I went back home and found my baby, three months old, was missing. When I left the house, between 5 and 5.30 o'clock, my child was alive.'"

Cameron, however, said witness, said: "It is not true. The baby was dead on Sunday morning. She woke me up and the child was cold. So far as I know she died a natural death. She kept crying to me and asked me what she was to do. I told her to fetch a doctor, and she said if she did there would be a coroner's inquest, and she would get six months for not registering its birth, or neglecting it."

"SITTING ON A SEAT."

"We afterwards wrapped it up in its night-dress and tied it up with cord, then carried it down the stairs. I put it under my coat, and we went together to Hampstead Heath."

"I left her sitting on a seat and put the child down among the trees and buried it underneath a tree. When I came back she had gone."

Witness added that he had gone at five o'clock that morning to Hampstead Heath with Cameron and Detective Hastings and after an hour's search found under the ground the body of the child.

The Magistrate: It seems a natural story. The inspector agreed and said that in view of the direct conflict of evidence he thought it advisable to charge them.

There was no outward sign of injury, and from inquiries he had made he had no doubt that the child died in the early hours of the morning.

Witness said the woman was married; but her husband had left her. He added that Dr. Spilsbury was making a post-mortem examination and the inquest would not be held until Thursday.

Mr. Paul Taylor remanded the prisoners for seven days. The woman was carried out of court in a fainting condition.

FOUR BUTTONS TO PRESS.

The King's Busy Time To-morrow Opening Three Buildings and Park.

The King will press four electric buttons to-morrow and inaugurate three new buildings and a park. These functions are part of the royal visit to Chester, Port Sunlight, Birkenhead and Wallasey.

Their Majesties and suite will motor to Chester from Knowsley. There will be a reception, and their Majesties will drive through the city. The King will pull an electric sledge, which will open the doors of the new wing of Chester General Infirmary.

Leaving Chester at 1 p.m., the royal party will proceed to Port Sunlight, where Sir William Lever will show them over the works. On leaving the works the King will, by pressing an electric button, lay the foundation-stone of an art gallery and museum at Hulme Hall.

At Birkenhead the King and Queen will pay a visit to the shipyard of Messrs. Cammell, Laird and Company. At the town hall the King, by pressing an electric button, will open a new park.

At Wallasey the King, by pressing another button, lays the foundation-stone of the new town hall.

SEASON-TICKET FRAUD.

Man with £1,200 a Year Fined for Travelling Without Paying Fare.

A man who said he held a responsible position with a firm of engineers and earned £1,200 a year was fined £6 and three guineas costs at the Mansion House yesterday for defrauding the District Railway.

The defendant was Jens Orten-Boving, of Hinchliffe, Arthur-road, Wimbledon Park, and there were three summonses against him for travelling without paying his fare.

Mr. Pearson (prosecuting) said that on March 16 the defendant took a third-class return ticket from Wimbledon Park to the Mansion House, but did not give up his ticket.

The next day he did not take a ticket, but travelled to the Mansion House, where there was a special examination of season tickets. He then gave up the forward half of the ticket taken the previous day. On the return journey he passed the barrier as a season ticket-holder.

On March 18 and March 19 he again travelled to the City without a ticket and passed the barrier at the Mansion House as a season ticket-holder.

For the defence it was urged that it was incredible that a man in defendant's position should have intended to defraud. The Lord Mayor disagreed, and said that it was bad enough when the poor did such things, but in the case of a man like the defendant such deliberate fraud was inexcusable.

The fine of £6 included the maximum penalty of £2 for each offence.

JUDGE, HIGHWAYMEN AND BETTING

Conducting his own case, Mr. W. Lotings, the sporting journalist, brought an action yesterday before Mr. Justice Scrutton against Mr. Henry Crawshaw, of Luton, who claimed damages for libel, for breach of contract, and asking for an injunction.

Opening his case at great length, Mr. Lotings explained that defendant was an owner of a bookmaker in different towns in England. The alleged libels consisted of attacks upon him (plaintiff), these attacks being of grave accusations of fraud, blackmail, etc.

The defendant was in respect of an arrangement with the defendant to supervise the "drawing" in connection with sweepstakes at Lucerne.

In the course of Mr. Lotings's statement the Judge, addressing the jury, said:

"There is an old case where the Judge refused to try an account between highwaymen, but I suppose we shall have to go into this betting scandal and pretend it is sport."

WOMEN'S DUEL OF SHRIEKS.

PARIS, March 23.—As I telegraphed yesterday, Mme. Caillaux has cited a number of witnesses, who, she declares, told her that two private letters from the ex-Minister to herself, written before their marriage, were in the hands of the Figaro, and were about to be published.

The first witness to be called to-day was Mme. Caillaux, and she denied ever having made such a statement.

With her face pale with emotion, the ex-Minister's wife broke in with, "Oh, yes, you did!" and then for several minutes she was a shrieking exchange of assertions and denials from the two women. (Photograph on page 20.)

SCHOLAR'S TRAGIC END.

NEW YORK, March 23.—In dingy lodgings in Stamford, Connecticut, Mr. Harry Thurston Peck, America's most brilliant critic and essayist, committed suicide by shooting himself.

He had been suffering from melancholia since his dismissal from the chair of Latin Language and Literature at Columbia University in October, 1910, following the filing of a £10,000 breach of promise suit against him by Miss Esther Quinn.

The suit was ultimately withdrawn, but not until Mr. Peck had suffered endless humiliation from the publication of a series of fervid love letters, most sentimental in character, which had been addressed to the lady whom he afterwards refused to marry. Shortly before the suit was filed Mr. Peck was divorced. After the divorce he married Miss Elizabeth H. Dubois.

THIS MORNING'S GOSSIP

Mr. John Dillon.

To-day's Grumble.

Mr. William Le Queux.

Mr. William Le Queux, the novelist, turns the grumble he sends to me into a warning. "Men in official positions should be careful when they employ foreign governesses," he says. "I know of two cases in point where German governesses have succeeded in obtaining very valuable information and transmitting it across the North Sea."

Governess-Spies.

"In one case the victim was a very well known member of Parliament, and among his excellent governess's effects there were found copies of confidential documents, together with certain well-drawn plans of some defences on our east coast. The documents were inadvertently left out and discovered by the member's wife. Exit the governess at a moment's notice."

"I have no ill-feeling towards foreign governesses, who, as a class, are particularly hard-working and ill-paid. But as the secret service of Berlin is now in the habit of employing them, members of Parliament, military and naval officers and others in official positions should be warned that they may unwittingly treat a foreign spy 'as one of the family.'"

Dandy Pilots.

I read recently a note on the earnings of pilots. Those of the Channel, it appears, are the plutocrats of the profession. They make as much as £600 a year.

The English pilot generally looks what he is, but, for some unknown reason, New York pilots dress like prosperous grocers. They always wear black coats and bowler hats.

A friend to whom I made this comment told me that years ago the New York pilots were great dandies. One he remembers used to board the incoming liners clad in silk hat, frock coat and lavender trousers.

He adopted this costume to please the English passengers, whose usual costume he firmly believed was the one he wore.

Too Successful.

"There is such a thing as being too successful," said a City man to me at lunch.

"Last week I had offered me a new process for extracting gold from sand. The inventor said it was great, and I tried it."

"I ground a sovereign to powder and mixed it with a bucket of common sand; the process recovered from that sand nearly 80s. worth of gold, and the inventor was quite right when I wouldn't have his patent."

The Brown Egg.

"Why are all the eggs I see in London dairies such a beautiful brown colour?" a country cousin asked me last week. "It looks as if one fowl had laid them all."

To answer her I asked a big dairy authority, and he admitted that eggs are "tanned" to suit the townsman's fancy.

City folk go much by appearance in foods. As they insist on brown eggs, so they demand yellow butter and white milk and bread. And the good tradesman, to please his customers, gives them what they want.

Organiser and Poet.

Mr. "Lulu" Harcourt, as one of the trustees of the London Museum, is largely responsible of the splendid organisation of that collection in its new home in Stafford House. He has given a lot of his time lately to the museum.

Organisation amounts to genius in Mr. Harcourt, and it is largely due to his faculty in this direction that he achieved what I believe is the unique distinction of being promoted to the Treasury Bench without ever having made a speech from the floor of the House.

Mr. Harcourt combines with his methodical genius a gift for verse, and many of the Liberal Party election songs are written by him.

Fashions from the London Museum.

When I looked in at the London Museum yesterday afternoon most of the galleries and rooms were full. The biggest crowd was, of course, round the case containing the treasure trove jewels. I think we shall have a fashion founded on these pretty trinkets soon. Nearly every woman I heard discussing them was suggesting getting some like them—replicas, of course.

If the museum can copyright the design—and wants money to further its excellent work—it might easily secure a small income from the sale of reproductions of those pleasant seventeenth century ornaments.

Attendants, Poite and Otherwise.

By the way, Mr. Guy Laking is to be congratulated on the courtesy and politeness of his staff of attendants. They have a very unpleasant duty to perform in searching women's muffs and handbags, but they performed it splendidly, and very differently from their colleagues at the South Kensington Museum.

A woman friend who went to that collection last week tells me that the rudeness and lack of courtesy of some of the attendants there make it undesirable for any woman to enter the building.

Third-Class Women.

Why is it that women will not travel first class on the railways? In that terrible hour which follows the matinee performances at the theatres on Saturday I watched crowds of luxuriously dressed women herding into third-class carriages at Charing Cross Underground Station.

It was obvious that most of these women could have afforded to travel first in comfort, but they preferred to rub shoulders with football crowds and stand up in the third-class compartments.

Nasty.

"Don't think, because I live in the country, that I don't follow the fashions." I overheard a charming lady on an omnibus say to her friend.

"No, dear," the friend replied sweetly, "but do you ever catch them up?"

Brontosaurus Louisae.

Sometimes I feel very glad I was born late in the world's life. They have just dug up a Mesozoic Brontosaurus, Louisae in Utah, a cheery little pet that was 85ft. long and 16ft. high when it lived some 15,000,000 years ago.

Brontosaurus's skeleton is complete, and from it scientists compute that he weighed at least twenty tons—a fat elephant weighs five.

Since a Brontosaurus would eat about 100lb. of hay and 25lb. of corn a day, to keep a small herd would prove an expensive and perhaps exciting amusement.

How a couple of them could disturb a quiet picnic!

Flapperitis.

At the present time the English stage is suffering from a dread disease which might be called "flapperitis." The growth of the flapper is deadly to the drama, yet at the present time the flapper seems to be having it all her own way.

First the flapper started by ruining burlesque. Her immediate ancestress in that branch of dramatic art was frequently distinctly plebeian in the matters of origin and early training.

She may have learnt her first dancing steps to a street organ, and her speech was often flavoured with Cockney idioms, yet somehow she had a real sense of the stage. With the advent of the flapper the burlesque actress died.

No Room for Her in Serious Drama.

The pity of it is that "flapperitis" has proved contagious. If we could have isolated the patients in the musical comedy hospitals the general public would not have suffered severely. But the flapper has spread to the drama.

She has been dumped down into serious plays, a poor, pathetic little figure, utterly ignorant of emotion, of the meaning of the words she has to speak, of comic or tragic suggestion.

It is hard on the author, it is hard on legitimate artists, it is hard on the public.

She Never Grows Up.

The modern stage flapper lives on a giggle and an insufferable assumption of gentility. She is nearly always incompetent and far too brainless and self-conscious to be anything of an artist.

The whole ambition of her tawdry little soul is to be girlish and "nice." She succeeds. She is the little Pansy Pan of the world. She never grows up.

Her ancestress, the burlesque actress, who was not ashamed to drink bottled stout and eat fried fish, worked at her art, and grew old in her time.

That was her tragedy. The flapper never grows old. That is hers.

Gloomy John.

At a time when orators on both sides of the Irish question are prone to indulge in fiery rhetoric, it is a notable fact that Mr. John Dillon's speeches have been distinctly pacific in character. Mr. Dillon used to be regarded as the first of the firebrands and the stormy petrel of Irish politics.

Mr. Balfour imprisoned him under the Coercion Act, and Mr. Forster sent him to gaol as a "suspect." He has on several occasions been admonished by the Speaker and suspended. He speaks always with an air of settled gloom.

Hunger In His Face.

Once, in America, after a platform meeting held with Parnell the chairman congratulated him in the following terms: "There is," he said, pointing to Parnell, "an aristocrat who knows nothing of suffering; but when you got up I wept and said, 'There is a man who has known hunger.' He has hunger in his face!"

"Glick."

General Count Gleichen, who is in command of the troops in Belfast, is a popular and experienced British officer, despite his foreign name and foreign extraction. King George is a great grandson of Count Gleichen's great grandmother, Princess Victoria Mary Louisa of Saxe-Coburg.

Last June the King signed a warrant giving Count Gleichen and his three sisters precedence "next and immediately before" marquises' and dukes' daughters. In the Army his friends call him "Glick."

When He "Died."

Born in 1863, he entered the Grenadier Guards in 1881, and has since seen plenty of active service. He served in the Sudan campaign, Dongola, 1896, and during the South African war.

At Modder River the Count was hit by a Boer bullet and fell as though dead.

A brother officer exclaimed as he stood over the supposed corpse: "Poor Glick is dead!" At that moment the power of speech returned to the Count. "No, I'm not," he exclaimed weakly. The bullet had just missed the jugular vein.

Great Adventures.

There is an unannounced comedy to be seen at any matinee at the Kingsway Theatre.

During one of the intervals a safety curtain is lowered, on which is inscribed a message of thanks to those women in the audience who have removed their hats.

It is thoroughly amusing to see the looks of virtuous pride on the faces of the no-hatted women as they glance round reprovingly at their sisters whose "crowning glory" is still surmounted by plumes and trimmings.

And the women with the hats either study their programmes or peer into their chocolate boxes or tilt their noses very high. And they laugh rather loudly with self-conscious composure.

THE RAMBLER.

WHY NEITHER FIRED.

General Who Could Not Risk Destroying Young Life in Duel.

In the history of duelling it has seldom happened that neither adversary would fire upon the other, but such a case has just occurred at Moscow.

After an altercation in a tramway-car there, says Reuter, a young staff lieutenant challenged a retired general of over sixty to a duel.

The challenge was accepted, and an encounter with pistols was arranged in a wood.

When the signal to fire was given to the great surprise of the seconds neither general nor lieutenant pulled his trigger.

The former explained afterwards that he could not risk destroying a young life over a triviality, while the lieutenant said that it was impossible to fire upon an opponent who had not raised his arm.

BALLOON RIPPED UP BY TREE.

Two naval officers had an exciting balloon descent at a farm at Killybrook, between Blackheath and Woolwich, yesterday. They ascended in a naval balloon from Farnborough about 11.30 in the morning, and were carried by the wind in a southeasterly direction. In the afternoon they found themselves above the clouds, and hearing some steamboat whistles hooting they let out some gas in order to descend and ascertain their whereabouts. Becoming involved in a downward air current, they were unable to rise again. The balloon then became entangled in a large tree.

"MANIA FOR KILLING."

Youth Who Visited Slaughter-Houses Found Guilty of Murder.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

LEEDS, March 23.—A remarkable story of a youth's mania for killing was told to-day at the Assizes, when Maurice Swift, aged seventeen, was found guilty of murder, but insane.

He was ordered to be detained as a criminal lunatic. The victim of the crime was Clara Wilkinson, an aged woman, whose body was found in a cellar.

It was stated that prisoner committed the murder on the day after he came out of prison after serving a sentence for cruelty to a number of cats.

A doctor's theory of the murder was that the woman's head was smashed with a hatchet, and that a razor and butcher's knife were used. Evidence was given by the lad's mother that he had a "mania for chopping up things," and that his little sister had a mania for tearing her clothes to pieces. The lad, it was stated, had been in the habit of visiting slaughter-houses, and had helped the butchers in their work.

He liked to watch beasts being killed, and had told the prison doctor about killing five cats by tying them to a wall and hitting them on the head with an iron bar.

Mr. Justice Banks, in sentencing prisoner to be detained during his Majesty's pleasure, said he thought the authorities should take steps to see that boys did not attend slaughter-houses.

SUPPER EATERS' HOUR.

Problem of a Reasonable Closing Time for Hotels and Restaurants.

What is a reasonable closing hour for hotels and restaurants in great cities?

Supper at a restaurant after the theatre or other entertainment is steadily growing in popularity, but as the London theatres do not close until a very late hour the time available before the legal closing time is too short for supper to be eaten in comfort.

Hotels and restaurants have to close at half-past twelve on ordinary nights and twelve o'clock on Saturdays.

This is felt to be a hardship, as supper clubs have unrestricted closing hours. So a deputation of hotel and restaurant-keepers will lay their grievances before the Home Secretary next Monday.

In other parts of the world the hour of closing varies considerably. To many Americans one o'clock is too early in New York.

Boston pleasure-seekers find it necessary to telephone between the acts for the liquid refreshments that may not be sold to too tardy after-theatre supper parties.

In Munich—famous for its beer, its music and its art collection—there is tumult over the issue of a three o'clock closing in place of the Berlin four o'clock or later.

The three o'clock closing of the bars in Munich drove would-be "bumblers" at first to the railway restaurants opening at half-past three.

These were soon doing a thriving ante-breakfast business.

PAINLESS BRACELETS.

New Form of Wrist Ornament in Chain-work of Gold and Platinum.

Chainwork bracelets in which platinum is alternated with gold are the latest form of wrist ornament for women.

They are fashioned in the "basketry" designs and are quite unlike anything previously worn. The smartest ones, The Daily Mirror was told, are those decorated with turquoise and deep green jade.

Three pieces of turquoise, shallow-cut stones of oval form, are mounted in the gold chainwork and match pieces of jade in the platinum sections.

Each division of metal is about half an inch in length and the stones are cut with the under side concave and the upper convex, so that the jewel rests flat and smooth against the arm.

"This is to prevent the bracelet hurting the arm or wrist in any way," explained the representative of a West End firm of jewellers.

"Bangles which are so tight round the arm that they stop the circulation of the blood are worn less and less now."

"These are always dangerous and are condemned by medical men, since they leave deep wheals on the flesh and make a woman's hands as red as her kitchenmaid's."

ARE YOU POISONING YOUR HAIR?

WORLD-FAMOUS HAIR SPECIALIST EXPLAINS THE STARTLING CAUSES OF PREMATURE GREYNESS AND HAIR DECAY.

Wonderful combined gift of a Complete Hairgrowing Toilet Outfit and a fully-illustrated book of 24 of the best Hair-dressing Styles of the day.

THOUSANDS of people in this country are rapidly poisoning their hair, depriving it of its lustrous beauty, weakening its growth and causing it to fall out.

This is the startling pronouncement which has just been made by an interviewer by the greatest Hair-Specialist in Europe, Mr. Edwards, the discoverer of Harlene-for-the-Hair and Inventor of the world-famous "Hair-Drill" method of growing beautiful hair.

"The people I refer to," says Mr. Edwards, "are mostly ladies, and, of course, they are not poisoning their hair deliberately. But, all the same, they are poisoning it in making use of all sorts of artificialities in their endeavours to make it look nice."

THE EVIL EFFECTS OF METAL HAIR-PINS, HAIR-PINS AND CURLERS ON THE HAIR.

Women have a habit of simply loading their hair with hair-pins, hair-pins, curlers and other metal implements. In an elaborate coiffure there are often scores, and few women, even on ordinary occasions, wear less than a dozen.

Now, the constant contact of metal is very bad for the hair, just as it is bad for a plant. Bind

3. A packet of Edwards' Cremex Shampoo Powder for dissolving Scurf deposits, rendering the scalp and skin perfectly clean and healthy, and preparing the scalp for Hair-Drill.
4. Full secret directions for carrying out in your own home the great "Harlene Hair-Drill" method of growing luxuriant, glossy and beautiful hair.

Follow the "Harlene Hair-Drill" method (it only takes you two or three minutes every day), and as a result all the poison in your hair will be eradicated. Dull and dead-looking hair will again become glossy and lustrous. New hair will spring up luxuriantly over the thin places. There will be no more splitting at the ends. The hair will cease to be brittle, will regain all its former elasticity, and will become soft, wavy and as beautiful as spun silk, with all the best hues of its colour brought out. There will be no more scurf and no more irritation of the scalp, and with the Hairdressing Guide at hand you will be able to improve your appearance out of all knowledge and take years off your age. Men, too, will find much useful information in the Guide.

EDWARDS' HARLENE HAIR-DRILL Grows beautiful real hair

Thousands of ladies are daily poisoning their hair by the use of metal combs, hairpins, curlers, etc., and Mr. Edwards, the renowned hair Specialist and Inventor of the now famous "Harlene Hair-Drill" method of scientific hair culture, issues a grave word of warning to all who are ruining their hair in the manner described. As a means of counteracting the evil effects of the various metal contrivances used in the process of hairdressing, he offers a free trial outfit, sufficient for carrying out a course of "Harlene Hair-Drill."

BRAINS AND BRICKS.

"It is a very strange thing, is it not?" said the middle-aged man, "that they cannot settle these things, with the aid of all their united brains, unless they bring bricks in to help them."

The young man knew the subject would have to be discussed sooner or later; so he sighed and lit his pipe and remarked: "I suppose you mean Ulster and Ireland."

"What else should I mean? This Ulster business clearly reveals to us the inadequacy of the human intellect as an instrument for the solution of any problem."

"Purely abstract problems we all know by now the human brain cannot solve; and that immortal question 'What is Truth?' has never been answered by anybody; so that, to-day, a popular school of philosophers have come to the conclusion that there's no such thing as Truth; or that we invent it as we go along."

"And for problems of practice, as well as for problems of thought, what use is this human brain? There are brains, brilliant or merely business-like, on one side and the other: brilliant brains of eminent lawyers, solid brains of eminent Scotsmen; unquiet Irish intellects, and impressionable Welsh intelligences. I never heard of so many valuable heads together over so grave a matter. Yet the only thing those heads can find to do, is to knock against one another. The insides are no use. The outsides are valuable, so long as they are sufficiently thick. Thickness of skull is more important in all quarrels, I gather, than agility of the grey matter within."

"Each brain, from its own point of view, works well," said the youth, "but none works for unity, because brains never agree. The only way to agree with anybody or anything is not to think about him or it. Brains dissociate men. They are made for analysis—for dissection—for division. They divide up. The only way to bring brains into association is to knock skulls together. In consequence, brains need bricks to help them. Bricks are but the servants of brains. Brains begin and bricks follow. It is always so. I gave up thinking years ago—except to myself."

"That is not the way to settle a grave Imperial matter."

"I don't want to settle it. Let it alone. To try to settle a matter is to be certain to confuse it. Apply human brains to a subject and it at once dissolves into mists. 'Nothing survives being thought of—especially politics.'"

"I suppose you find no difficulty in following out your philosophy in your own life?"

"Don't be rude."

"I am not rude, but I hate to see such cynicism in the young. In my day . . ."

"Yes: now you see the result of your day—this day, with bricks and Ulster."

"That was not our fault; Mr. Gladstone . . ."

"Oh, don't bring up Gladstone."

"Of course, if you will interrupt . . ."

Then, suddenly, the speaker rose up from the table, the newspaper under his arm. "I will return when you're in a better temper," he positively shouted.

The human brain had failed to settle a problem once again. And—who knows?—had there been any bricks about . . .

LOVE IN THE CHILD.

Love, thou art absolute, sole Lord
Of life and death. To prove the word,
We'll now appeal to none of all
Those thy old soldiers, great and tall,
Rise men of martyrdom, that could reach down
With strong arms their triumphant crown:
Such as could with lusty breath
Speak loud, unto the face of death,
Their great Lord's glorious name; to none
Of those whose spacious bosoms spread a throne
For love at large to fill. Spare blood and sweat
We'll see him take a private seat,
And make his mansion in the mind
And milky soul of a soft child.

NURSING HOMES.

I AM indeed rejoiced that you are taking up the crying evils of some of the London Nursing Homes, and beg to contribute my experiences, acquired looking after a relative who was undergoing treatment in a home.

The home was wholly under the control of the proprietors, whose sole object appeared to be gain. The charges were high, and the petty rules of the institution enforced ruthlessly without regard for the feelings or comfort of the patient.

On being admitted after the operation (no one was allowed to see the patient before) I found her in a dingy back room looking out on a garage, where the frequent noises of the cars had been varied through the night by the cries of a sick baby.

Notwithstanding that she had told the nurse lady was a bad sleeper, the patient had been disturbed every hour by the nurse coming in with creaking

"SLOPPY" SENTIMENT.

I FEEL I must put my little word in after reading the rather ignorant letter written by "Seventeen." Might I ask "Seventeen" if seriously she would allow a man to embrace her in broad daylight in the middle of a road?

She writes, "What wrong is there?" and adds that girls are far more sensible nowadays than they used to be, and also that those people who blush, and are somewhat reserved in their feelings, are only making themselves ridiculous and unnatural. No, I think girls and the men also are far too sensible nowadays to stand in broad daylight clasped in each other's arms for the amusement of the public. I agree with "Seventeen" that the "young people" of this generation see there is more happiness to be got out of life by being natural and frank, but is not it quite natural, with but few exceptions, for young lovers to be somewhat

FIVE CROWDED MINUTES OF GLORIOUS ENGLISH WEATHER.

The English climate has arrived at its annual crisis of hot-and-cold, rain-and-fine. You never know one moment what it is going to do the next. You never know what clothes to put on, either.—(By Mr. W. K. Haselden.)

shoes—and, having fallen asleep in the early morning, had been deliberately awakened at 6.30 to have her temperature taken.

Finally, at 8 o'clock she was hustled out of bed and taken downstairs to a room on the ground floor, where she sat shivering for an hour while the room was being prepared for the operation.

The patient's necessary sufferings after the operation were cruelly aggravated by a hard, lumpy bed which on examination proved to be nothing more than a much-worn flock mattress without any springs. The patient was pronounced "fussy" for complaining of this, and had I not appealed to the doctor, who insisted on my being allowed to send in a proper bed, this would never have been remedied. I must add that the surgeon was evidently ignorant of the conditions of the home he so strongly recommended, and that he was most reluctant to listen to any complaints or interfere in any way with the nurses.

It appeared to me that the patient's only alternative was to submit to all the miseries inflicted by the hardness and thoughtlessness of the nurses, or to risk making enemies of the very people upon whose care her health and possibly life depended, and the result was, of course, generally, submission.

shy and bashful, and to my mind it is these ordinary lovers of to-day and yesterday that love the dearest.

I may add that however much it may not be wrong, I should be very much annoyed if the man I liked, loved and respected was to put his arms round my waist and expected me to meekly submit to these embraces, however fond, in full view of our very unsympathetic public of to-day.

I think "Seventeen" must have lived in some rustic retreat. ENGLAND OF THE 20TH CENTURY.

"SEVENTEEN" holds that, if it gives lovers "happiness" to make exhibitions of themselves in the public streets, then it is nothing to do with other people.

I cannot believe that such behaviour could ever give any well-balanced couple any feelings except those of shame. It must be remembered that the condition we call love is merely a peculiar disease, and though harmless enough generally, approaches in many cases the verge of lunacy. Such outbursts in the street, therefore, call, not for defence, but for prompt mental and medical treatment.

The very people who indulge in these manifestations are the first to condemn them in others.

OVERSEER.

'BREACH OF PROMISE.'

How the Mania for Improving Others Brings Marriages to Grief.

IT is too true that the habit of lecturing and nagging men induces them, in nine cases out of ten, to get tired of the girls they have chosen to marry.

But I think it is very often not the girl's own fault.

Very often a girl sincerely cares for a man—as he is and does not want to change him in the least. What happens is that her friends then work upon her with their criticisms. They come to her and say: "My dear, of course we like him very much, and he's charming and all that, but don't you think, dear, that he contradicts rather?"

Doesn't he argue rather a lot? I mean, he takes his politics rather seriously, doesn't he? I should, if I were you, correct him about that."

Of course, she has never noticed it before, but now that they speak of it, she does notice it, and feels bound to correct him: "A keenness about politics is no harm to a young man. Would that our young men of to-day had some such serious interest! She tries to make him 'enthus' less. He prefers his convictions to her. I think he is quite right. There is still time for him to 'get out of it.' Do not your readers think he would be right to do so? OX OR TRIP, LANSDOWN, Beaufort-gardens, S.W."

It is chiefly after marriage that people who are supposed to be in love with one another begin to correct one another.

"I only do it because I love you," said my husband to me the other day, after a long sermon about my clothes, my manners, my way of doing my hair and my way of spending the day.

It may be so. Yet before my marriage, when he seemed to love me at least as much as he does now, I did not notice that he ever insisted so much on my defects.

My own conviction is that the time when a man begins to "lecture" his wife, or when a wife begins to try and "improve" her husband, is simply the time when they begin to care less for one another. Love is supposed to be blind and to see no defects in the beloved.

DISAPPOINTED.
Clarendon-place, W.

"W. M." seems to "girls" think that "nice girls" marry because they fall desperately in love. How beautiful it would be if it were always so!—but I am afraid more often nice girls marry in order to change the monotony of their lives and to get away from home—to have homes of their own.

That being so, it is surely perfectly natural that these nice girls should fix upon men—not so much because they desperately love them, as because they see that they have their "good points" and that they believe they can get them into shape.

The other day, I was congratulating a very ment. "Oh, yes, he's not bad," was her reply, "but he's a bit rough. He'll want knocking into shape." And at present she is engaged upon that operation.

Whether he will endure it calmly or not remains to be seen. WIMBLEDON.

Sir H. Thompson, F.R.C.S. Britain's Best Bread—THE Bread of Health.

Allinson Bread is a complete food—and more. In addition to supplying Nature's best nutriment for brain, body, and bone, it contains the health-building elements of wheat (which are removed from ordinary white and brown breads).

One of the greatest dietetic authorities of this generation, Sir Henry Thompson, F.R.C.S., said in his well-known book, "Food and Feeding," that all bread should be made from entire wheatmeal (as Allinson Bread is made). In the plainest language he states that bread which lacks the health-regulating elements (which you get in Allinson Bread) is mischievous and should not be eaten.

In a word, Allinson Bread is true to Nature—being pure wholemeal of the choicest wheat, unadulterated and unspoiled. Eaten regularly at every meal it will maintain you in regular health free from Constipation and Indigestion as Nature planned. Try it yourself and prove it.

FLUSH THE KIDNEYS, AND BACKACHE AND KIDNEY TROUBLE MUST GO.

So Says Eminent Specialist.

If your back hurts flush out your kidneys. This is the advice given by a specialist, who says that backache is a forerunner of the dreaded kidney disease.

Nowadays we eat too much meat, which forms uric acid, excites the kidneys, and they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and thereby cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache, rheumatic twinges, severe headache, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, and bladder and kidney irritation.

The moment your back hurts or you feel your kidneys are not acting right or your bladder bothers you, get an ounce or two of carmalum compound from your chemist and take 8 to 10 drops in a tablespoonful of water 3 times a day, after meals, and your kidneys will then act fine.

It tastes pleasant, stimulates the kidneys to a healthy action, and cleans them right out, enabling them to perform their work as nature intended. It also neutralises the acidity in the urine, so that it no longer irritates, thus ending all bladder disorders.

This fine old recipe has kept many people young even in their old age, and for those past middle life it is almost indispensable. Anyone suffering from Kidney or Bladder trouble should give it a trial. You will probably find it is just what you need.—(Advt.)

BRANDY TO CURE CATARRH.

Recent experiments have proved conclusively that catarrh is a constitutional disease, and that salves, sprays, inhalers, etc., merely temporise with the disease, and seldom, if ever, effect a permanent cure. This being so, much time and money has been spent of late by a noted specialist in perfecting a pure, gentle, yet effective tonic that would dispel all traces of the catarrhal poison from the system. The result is given in the following formula, which has been found to produce the most surprising results in an incredibly short time.

From your chemist obtain 1oz. of Parnint (Double Strength), about 2s. 6d. worth. Take this home and add to it 4-pint of hot water and two tablespoonfuls of brandy and 4oz. of morphia or granulated sugar. Stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

The first dose promptly ends the most miserable headache, dullness, sneezing, sore throat, running of the nose, catarrhal discharges, and other loathsome symptoms that always accompany this disgusting disease.

Loss of smell, defective hearing, and mucus dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms that show the presence of catarrh, and which are quickly overcome by the use of this simple treatment.

Every person who has catarrh in any form should give this prescription a trial. There is nothing better.—(Advt.)

WORLD'S GREATEST DRESS MATINEES.

Wonderful Display of Gowns and Programme of Music and Dancing at the Albert Hall To-morrow and Thursday.

150,000 CANDLE-POWER SEARCHLIGHTS.

A rehearsal yesterday of the great Daily Mirror Dress Matinee, which takes place at the Royal Albert Hall to-morrow afternoon—to be repeated in detail in the same building on Thursday—proved that it will be the most wonderful display ever held in connection with dress.

Now and then, as various items of the mammoth programme were dealt with, slight adjustments were made to ensure perfection in sequence—and in every detail.

Several new gowns—designed by such masters as Beer, Doucet, Drecoll and Premet—have now been added to the already imposing list, of which specimens have been described in The Daily Mirror.

Each gown—as, worn by a beautiful model, it makes its appearance on the wide promenade which has been specially erected right across the arena—will be “set to music” by Herr Simon Nurn, who will conduct in person his famous Viennese orchestra, has arranged musical motifs to synchronise with the harmonies of the dresses.

This is a list of the pieces to be played during the display of gowns—

Mousette	Palerowski	Dance des Bacchantes
La Paloma	Yradier	Gounod
Humoresque	Dreok	Wedding Dance
Star of Eve (Tannhauser)	Wagner	The Rosary
Adagio (From Sonata)	Wagner	Forget-me-not
Pathétique	Beethoven	Macheth
Wedding March	Mendelssohn	Melody in F
Wedding March	Wagner	Menuet
Dance des Libellules	Ellenberg	Boccherini
Aisha	Lindberg	Song de l'Amour
Rose Mounse	Boc	Apres de bal
Herbststueben	Ellenberg	Salut d'Amour
Serenata	Moskowsky	Entr'acte Japanese
Barcarole	Offenbach	Chanson Paroles
		Sizilietta
		Old Love is Never Forgotten
		Barcarole

The promenade itself will be carpeted in a neutral tint of green reseda in order to show off personally, both at The Daily Mirror Offices and those of the Sandow Corset Company.

As some thousands of readers just missed Wednesday's matinee by a day's delay in writing for tickets, no time should be lost by readers who wish to make sure of tickets for Thursday's repetition. More than half the hall has already been allotted for the second day, and as Wednesday night is the very latest at which tickets can be dispatched to ensure their reaching their destination in time, it will not be safe to leave applications beyond to-day.

The tickets which still remain will be allotted strictly in the order in which requests are received. Letters should be addressed to The Daily Mirror Offices, marked “Dress Matinee” in the top left-hand corner.

CHILD ACTORS MAKE THEIR OWN DRESSES.

Characters in “Hiawatha's Wedding Feast,” which was performed by children at the Vittoria-place L.C.C. school, Caledonian-road, Islington. The youngsters made all their own dresses out of old pieces of material. The piece was produced by Miss Lovvengren.—(“Daily Mirror” photograph.)

the brilliant colour effects of the gowns, which will be in such variety as to enable every woman in the vast audience, whatever her type, to see the scheme of toilette most becoming to her.

No expense is being spared to make the display artistic in every particular. The actual cost of Wednesday's matinee alone exceeds £1,500, and 10,000 women will be able to spend a delightful afternoon free of charge and without any obligation.

The lighting will cost over £100, for though daylight might have served, it was decided by the organisers to exclude it altogether and use brilliant artificial light. The immense work which is necessary in organising such a demonstration for Daily Mirror readers is shown by the fact that to “blot out” the daylight from the Albert Hall roof occupied a number of workmen two days and cost £60.

As the models wearing the splendid gowns proceed along the promenade and the stage they will be “followed” by two enormous Navy searchlights, each of 150,000 candle-power! These lights and the attendant arrangements necessary will eat up £2 a minute while they are at work.

Thirty square yards will have been added on to the stage—one of the largest in London—in order to give greater facilities to the dancers, whose comfort has also been studied in the placing down of a temporary dancing floor.

As this is entirely a woman's matinee, no men will take part in the demonstration of “The Corset as the Basis of Dress.” Mr. Eugen Sandow, who with his fellow-directors of the Sandow Corset

DID YOUR CHILD WAKE UP CROSS OR FEVERISH?

Look, Mother! If Tongue is Coated, Give “California Syrup of Figs” To Clean the Bowels.

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if the tongue is coated; this is a sure sign that its little stomach, liver and bowels need attention at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, “stuffy” with cold, throat sore; when the child has tainted breath and doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, or has stomach-ache or diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals “California Syrup of Figs” for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the waste-matter, sour bile and fermenting food clogged in the bowels pass out of the system, and you have a healthy and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious “fruit laxative,” and it never fails to effect a good “inside” cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow, but get the genuine. Ask your chemist for a bottle of “California Syrup of Figs,” then look and see that it is made by the “California Fig Syrup Company.” Counterfeits are being sold here. All leading chemists sell “California Syrup of Figs.” Is. 3d. and 1s. 9d. per bottle. Refuse substitutes.—(Advt.)

HOW TO GET RID OF CATARRH

A Simple, Safe Reliable Way and it Costs Nothing to Try.

Those who suffer from catarrh know its miseries. There is no need of this suffering. You can get rid of it by a simple, safe, inexpensive, home treatment discovered by Dr. Blosser, who, for over thirty-six years, has been treating catarrh successfully.

His treatment is unlike any other. It is not a spray, douche, saline, cream, or inhaler, but is a more direct and thorough treatment than any of these. It cleans out the head, nose, throat and lungs so that you can again breathe freely and sleep without that stopped-up feeling that all catarrh sufferers have. It heals the diseased mucous membranes and arrests the foul discharge, so that you will not be constantly blowing your nose and spitting, and at the same time it does not poison the system and ruin the stomach, as internal medicines do.

If you have catarrh of the nose, throat or lungs, choking, stopped-up feeling, colds, catarrhal headaches; if you are given to hawking and spitting, this simple yet scientific treatment should cure you.

If you want to test this treatment without cost, send your address to Dr. Blosser, Ltd. (Dept. 5B), 8, Bouverie-street, London, E.C., who will send you by return post enough of the medicine to satisfy you that it is all they claim for it as a remedy for catarrh, catarrhal headaches, catarrhal deafness, asthma, bronchitis, colds and all catarrhal complications. They will also send you free an illustrated booklet. Write them immediately. On sale at Boots Cash Chemists, and other chemists' shops.—(Advt.)

RHEUMATISM CONQUERED.

THE REMEDY FREE.

I say that I can conquer rheumatism with a simple home treatment, without electric treatment, stringent diet, weakening baths or any internal dosing that injures the digestion, or, in fact, any of the usual treatments recommended for the cure of rheumatism.

Don't shut your eyes and say "Impossible," but put me to the test. You may have tried everything you ever heard of and have spent your money right and left. I say, well and good, let me prove my claims without expense to you.

So send your name and the treatment will be sent you at once. I am willing to take the chance and surely the test will tell. When I send you this, I will write you fully, and will show you that my treatment is not only for curing rheumatism, but should also cleanse the system of Uric Acid and give great benefit in Kidney troubles and help the general health.

This special offer will not be held open indefinitely. It will be necessary for you to make your application quickly. So take advantage of this offer before it is too late. Just send your name and address and I will send the remedy. Write to-day. F. H. Delano (Dept. 1D), 8, Bouverie Street, London, E.C.—(Advt.)

PRACTICAL GOWNS FOR "AT HOMES."

Details to Study in New Dresses are Sashes and Velvet Neck Bands.

"SWAN-NECK BRIGADE."

Paris, March, 1914.

Chère Amie.—You are quite right in your premonition that I have at the moment "heaps of new ideas" in connection with afternoon frocks!

In fact, I may say that I am thoroughly well up in this subject, for everyone wants just what you want. I gather that you have in your mind simple afternoon gowns suitable for an "At Home" day and yellow silks picked-out with dull silver. The neck was, of course, décolleté, and there was a frill collar in ivory "tulle brodé." I want you to pay special attention to the sash shown in my sketch. This is one of the new models, and it is a real "find," because it is inexpensive and very easily made. The model I have indicated was composed of a length of moonlight-blue ribbon, lined with the same ribbon in lemon-yellow, a blue tassel being attached to one end and a yellow tassel to the other side.

These sashes are going to be immensely popular. They are simply passed round the waist and carelessly knotted in front or at the side. They can be worn with almost any frock, and they are made in the most fascinating combinations of colour, such as navy and cerise, eucalyptus-green and royal-blue, Pompeian-red and Mandarin-blue, and so on. The or for one of the informal afternoon dances which are endless—at least, in Paris—and for which even the smartest coat and skirt does not seem quite sufficiently habillé.

The sketch I am sending you is a thoroughly practical little model, being part of a three-piece costume. You will see that it is a glorified blouse and skirt and the coat must be understood. The original model was worn by Betty Dausmond, who is a charming little actress and whose frocks are ideal for girls of your age.

SACK EFFECT FOR SKIRT.

The skirt was made of a new soft material which is rather like camel's-hair cloth. The colour was moonlight-blue and the design was most original. At the waist it was quite plain, but at the knee-line there was a slight amount of fullness which gave a quaint "sack" effect. There was a fascinating tunic-blouse in a thick silk with a dull surface. This was in a delicious clear shade of lemon-yellow, and there were some fine "Art Nouveau" embroideries in blue

"DAILY MIRROR" BEAUTIES.—No. 127.

England is so rich in pretty girls that if this competition were to continue for five years there would be no difficulty in filling this corner every day. Prizes of £10 and 100 books will be awarded to those sending in the most complete lists of names of the original, with the best summary of their merits at the end of the twenty-six weeks during which the portraits appear.—(Dover-street Studios.)

WHY DOCTORS NO LONGER CLAIM TO "CURE" PEOPLE,

A few years ago it was a common thing for the family doctor to say "I will cure you in a few days." This cheerful prophecy often gave the patient new hope and courage, but it is no longer good form. Doctors still "cure" malaria and a few other troubles in which their medicines have a direct or "specific" action on the virus of the disease. In other cases they simply give supporting medicine and keep up the strength of the patient until nature effects a cure.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure anaemia, chlorosis, and other troubles due to thin blood, because these Pills have a specific action on the blood, building it up, purifying and enriching it. This direct action on the blood also makes them the best supporting and strengthening medicine. If you are thin and weak, breathless after slight exertion, if you have palpitation of the heart, gas on the stomach, cold hands and feet, if you are nervous and easily irritated, and show other signs of weakened vitality, try these strengthening Pills at once and let the rich, red blood cure you.

Mrs. M. Wilson, of 8 Cable-street, Lancaster, supplies very interesting evidence. She states: "At one time, for days and days together, I went off food; then through lack of blood my health became irregular, and my nerves went thoroughly to pieces. I was always taking different medicines, but none seemed any good for my complaint. What I wanted was richer and better blood."

"After many months like this, I was persuaded to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. When I had taken three boxes of these Pills I could eat substantial meals, then my blood got rich and red. Thanks to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, I was steadily and perfectly cured."

Get a box to-day of the nearest dealer and begin at once to build up your health. Sent direct by Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 46 Holborn-viaduct, London, post free, for 2s. 9d. a box, or 13s. 9d. for six boxes.

How to Have the Best Cough
Syrup and Save 10/- by Making It at Home.

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. If you take one and a half breakfast cups of granulated sugar, add one breakfast cup of warm water and stir about two minutes, you have as good syrup as money could buy.

If you then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (costing about 2s. 9d.) in a bottle, and add the Sugar Syrup, you will have as much cough syrup as you could buy ready-made for 12s. 6d. Take two teaspoonful every two hours. You will find it the best cough syrup you ever used. You can feel it take hold—usually stops the most severe cough in twenty-four hours. Splendid, too, for colds, whooping cough, influenza, croup, hoarseness, chest pains and lung and throat troubles. Children like it.

Pinex is the most valuable extract of genuine Norway Pine, rich in gualacol, so healing to the membranes. This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup is now used in thousands of homes. The plan has often been imitated, but never successfully.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your chemist has Pinex, or can easily get it for you.—(Advt.)

A generous test of the famous skin remedy—the scientific liquid wash, D. D. D. Prescription, absolutely free to all skin sufferers. A few drops from this large trial bottle will give instant relief.

REDUCED SIZE.

D. D. D. Prescription

is a liquid wash applied direct to the diseased parts. As soon as it touches the burning sores, the skin is soothed and cooled. The pure, clean liquid then sinks through the pores and kills the disease germs that lie deeply buried in the skin. It throws them off, leaves the skin wholesome and free to quickly heal.

Not a Salve D. D. D. is a liquid. Only a liquid can scientifically and thoroughly heal the skin. Sticky salves and greasy ointments cannot penetrate to the deeply buried germs. They only clog the pores and encourage the growth of disease.

D. D. D. penetrates! Eczema, psoriasis, bad leg, ringworm, any form of skin disease, mild or violent, yields instantly to its soothing effect. Pimples, rashes disappear often over night.

Go to your chemist today for a bottle of D. D. D. Prescription, 5s. One bottle lasts longer than six boxes of salves or creams. D. D. D. will give you instant relief and a complete cure.

JEANNETTE v. CARPENTIER AT PARIS.

Jeannette stopping a rush by Carpentier.

Jeannette dodging a right swing.

Carpentier trying to "loop the loop."

To-day we publish further pictures of the boxing match between Carpentier and Joe Jeannette at Luna Park, Paris, which resulted in the defeat of the young French champion on points after fifteen rounds. There was a great crowd present. Jeannette was very lucky to snatch a decision, for, in the opinion of most people at the ring-side, the Frenchman deserved at least a draw. It was a thrilling contest.

LITTLE FASTING NOW.

Lenten Restriction of Diet No Longer Favoured—Penances That Are Kept.

Lenten fasting is rapidly becoming one of the obsolete customs of this country. There is practically no difference between the supplies of meat and fish during Lent than at any other time of the year.

These were the conclusions reached by The Daily Mirror yesterday after a tour of the London markets and restaurants to ascertain what effect the season of Lent had upon the food supplies.

The superintendent of Smithfield Meat Market said that there was no decrease in the sale of meat during Lent.

"The retail trade may be a little sluggish in some quarters of London, but on the whole business is the same as at any other time of the year," he said.

Some interesting figures showing the total amount of meat arriving at Smithfield (and, of course, disposed of) during the past few weeks is as follows:—

Week Ending	Tons.	Week Ending	Tons.
February 7	7,991	February 28	8,723
February 14	8,572	March 7	8,885
February 21	8,634	March 14	8,336

It will be seen that although there was a decrease of supplies for week ending March 14, there had been a steady increase previous to that, although Lent had started.

A prominent fish factor at Billingsgate Market said that the increase in the sale of fish had been very slight this year.

"There is only one day on which there is always a very big demand for fish of all kinds—on the day before Good Friday," he said.

One of the staff of Messrs. Sweetings said that whereas some years ago the demand for fish among City men doubled during the Lenten season, to-day there was only about 25 per cent. increase.

If the Londoner, however, is not restricting his diet in any way this year there are dozens of men and women who are denying themselves various luxuries and pleasures.

A few actual 1914 Lenten penances discovered by The Daily Mirror are as follows:—

Chocolates and other sweets banned. One cup of tea in the afternoon instead of three.—A Girl Typist. Cigarette smoking (an average of thirty a day) abandoned in favour of a pipe.—Young Business Man. Night clubs and theatre banned. Rise early and punctually. Shave before breakfast—cheerful during meal.—A Newly-Married Husband. No drinks between meals.—Elderly City Man. No sugar in tea or coffee.—Girl of Twenty.

These are a few of the self-imposed penances among Londoners which until now have been faithfully kept. Hundreds of other self-denying resolutions have also been made by other people, but—have not been kept.

HARRIED LANDLORDS.

Tenants' Myriad Complaints, from Frying Kippers to Lovers' Good-byes.

"Landlord baiting is just now the amusement of the hour among many householders in London."

Thus complained the owner of considerable property in the Maida Vale district to The Daily Mirror yesterday.

"Agreements expire on Lady Day," he went on to explain, "so for week or two we are worried almost to distraction by tenants who really wish to renew their agreements, but threaten to terminate them unless all sorts of imaginary grievances receive our attention."

"Now, I am prepared to admit that many complaints are just. Frequently a house or flat does require repainting or redecorating and sundry repairs."

On the other hand, however, the complaints of tenants are more often than not quite beyond the power of the landlord to deal with. Especially ridiculous are those coming from occupiers of maisonnettes and flats.

"How, for instance, could I deal with such grievances as these, which come from occupiers of maisonnettes in the West of London, where the large houses are each divided into three maisonnettes?—

The occupant of a second floor maisonnette threatens to leave because the people on the first floor persist in grilling blisters on Sunday, so that they cannot ask visitors on that day, because of the smell which permeates the place."

Then the tenants of a ground floor maisonnette complain that the daughter of the occupant of the top floor comes home very late at night and awakens them from their slumbers. Further, that on one particular occasion the young man who usually accompanies the daughter to the door was saying "good-bye" for nearly forty minutes and all the time was prepping himself against an electric button, setting a bell ringing on the ground floor.

"Such complaints as these are really very common and made in all seriousness," added the landlord, "and never dare we interfere, for there is the probability of losing two tenants if we do."

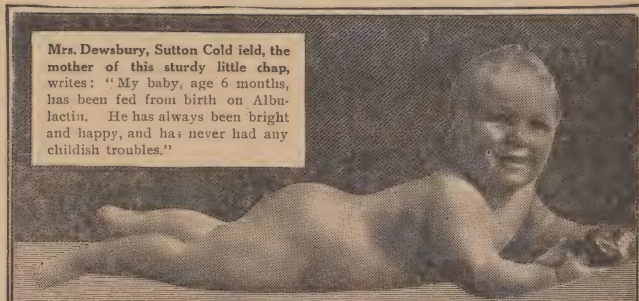

EMIGRANTS' PLIGHT—AGENT FINED.

Penalties totalling £135 were imposed at Bow-street yesterday on Frederick Hetherington, passage broker's agent, of the Strand, who was summoned for inducing persons to emigrate to the Argentine Republic by falsely representing that work would be found for all on arrival.

The summonses were in respect of seven men, who booked their passages to Buenos Ayres through him. These men, after twenty-one days in the Argentine, had to apply for relief to the British Consul and were repatriated at the expense of the Government.

Sir John Dickinson also ordered the defendant to pay £37 costs, and directed that each of the seven men should receive £13 of the penalties as compensation.

Mrs. Dewsbury, Sutton Cold field, the mother of this sturdy little chap, writes: "My baby, age 6 months, has been fed from birth on Albulactin. He has always been bright and happy, and has never had any childish troubles."

"What a fine, sturdy little chap!"

THAT is what everyone says about Baby Dewsbury, who was reared from birth on Albulactin mixed with diluted cow's milk.

Look at his strong, healthy frame; look at his lovely round limbs—not flabbily fat, but well covered with firm, plump flesh—and his bonny, smiling face.

"He has always been bright and happy," says his mother, "and has never had any childish troubles."

Feed your baby on

Albulactin

He is sure to thrive on it just as splendidly as Baby Dewsbury and thousands of other infants.

TO REDUCE YOUR WEIGHT

If you are over-stout the cause of your over-stoutness is the lack of oxygen-carrying power in the blood and faulty assimilation of food. Too little is being made into the harder tissue of muscle and too much into little globules of fat. Therefore, you should correct the malassimilation and increase the oxygen-carrying power of the blood. To do this, go to any good chemist and get oil of orlene in capsule form, and take one capsule after each meal and one at bedtime till your weight is reduced to what it should be on all parts of the body. The effect of oil of orlene in capsule form is remarkable as a weight reducer, and it is perfectly safe.—E. J. T.—(Adv.)

How glorious, how grand TIZ makes tired, swollen, sore, perspiring feet feel!

"Just couldn't wait to take my hat off!"

Just take your shoes off and then put those weary, shoe-crinkled, aching, burning, corn-pierced, bunion-tortured feet of yours in a TIZ bath. Your toes will wriggle with joy; they'll look up at you and almost talk and then they'll take another dive in that TIZ bath.

SHOT IN MUSIC HALL: FELO DE SE VERDICT.

Felo de se was the verdict returned yesterday at the inquest on Richard Connor, who shot himself in the Empire Theatre, London. Facing the camera is Miss Lilian Peak, who told a remarkable story.

EMPIRE SHOTS DRAMA.

"Best Thing He Ever Did," Says Coroner of Man Who Killed Himself.

Despairing letters to a girl were read at the inquest at Westminster yesterday on Richard Connor, a commercial traveller, who shot himself during a performance at the Empire Theatre, Leicester-square, on Wednesday evening.

The jury returned a verdict of Felo de se. Lilian Peak, a pale woman, dressed in black, identified the body, and said Connor was a German subject.

She first met him at the Oxford Music Hall, and after living with him for over five years she left him a few weeks ago. He was very cruel to her.

Connor had arranged to meet her on the night of the tragedy at the Empire Music Hall. He pressed her to go back and live with him. She replied that she would always be friends with him, but would not live with him.

Continuing, the witness said Connor suddenly jumped up and said, "Good-bye, Lily." She had turned away, but on turning back she saw he had a revolver in his hand. He shot once, and she cried out, but he shot again and fell.

The coroner read the following passages from letters written by Connor:—

"I told you almost every day you have driven me to death. You know I have for more than five years sacrificed all for you and believed you loved me, and as you said nothing would part you and me, I trusted you. Now one day you turn on me and tell me you love another man. All my pleadings were in vain. You saw me suffer—almost starving myself."

"I cannot stand the strain any longer. I will not burden my soul with such a crime. I alone will pay the last penalty, and you will see me fall."

Medical evidence showed that Connor was a very ugly man. He had an artificial nose and arm, a diseased foot, and his face was disfigured.

The coroner said it was difficult to speak with restraint of such a man. It seemed remarkable that this girl should have lived with him. Apparently he determined to shoot himself when he found that the girl would not continue to live with him, and it was one of the best things he ever did.

STOCKS AND SHARES.

Another New Colonial Loan—Tasmanian Issue Result.

9, BISHOPSGATE, E.C.

The Stock markets are still being swayed by developments in the Ulster crisis. Yesterday morning's news gave rise to fresh hopes that a peaceful settlement will be reached after all, and prices as a consequence enjoyed a brisk rally, Consols leading the way with a spurt of $\frac{1}{2}$ to 75 $\frac{1}{2}$.

As had been generally expected, the Tasmanian Government loan has met with a poor response, as much as 81 per cent. of the issue being left with the underwriters. Thus of the total offer of £1,500,000 the public has only subscribed for £285,000. The scrip was quoted at $\frac{1}{2}$ discount on the news.

In spite of this latest ill-success, we believe that yet another Colonial loan is about to be floated. Underwriting arrangements, it is understood, were in progress yesterday for an issue of £1,150,000 in Four per Cent. stock at 98 by the City of Winnipeg. Whether this offer will meet with any better response than other recent issues of a similar nature remains to be seen.

Among Newspaper prices Amalgamated Press Ordinary fell $\frac{1}{2}$ to 54, but the Preference were again quoted at 22s., while Associated Newspaper Ordinary and Preference remained at 24s. and 21s. 6d. respectively, and Pictorial Newspaper Ordinary and Preference at 23s. and 19s.

CHRISTIAN SCIENTIST'S GOLD SHARES

That he was not anxious to interest people in Christian Science, and that he merely mentioned he was going to a meeting, was stated at the Guildhall yesterday by Captain R. Gardner when the hearing was resumed of the charge of conspiracy brought by him against Sydney Bennett, Frederick Grosvenor and Charles Levin.

Captain Gardner alleges that Bennett and a man named Chichester, who is not in custody, induced him to take up at par 2,000 £1 shares in the Associated Gold Mines of British Columbia and Guiana, worth about 1s. each.

Chichester and Bennett are alleged to have gained the confidence of the captain by accompanying him to Christian Science meetings.

The Difference between

Weakness and Vigour—between Dullness and Vivacity—between Chronic Fatigue and an almost inexhaustible fund of Energy, is the difference between Anæmia or Blood-poverty and rich, healthy Blood.

When you feel weary, faint and depressed, when your complexion loses its healthy appearance and becomes dull and pallid—when you are out of breath with the least exertion—then you are showing the first signs of Anæmia or Blood-poverty. Unless arrested by proper treatment, Anæmia slowly but surely impairs digestion and sets up a vicious circle of ailments. You should commence a course of Iron 'Jelloids' at once.

A Fortnight's Trial (1s. 11d.) will convince you that Iron 'Jelloids' are unequalled for Anæmia with weakness and debility—they promote rich red blood full of oxygen. It is impossible to maintain Health and Strength on weak and impoverished blood. Strong, healthy blood will fight all your battles for you.—and Iron 'Jelloids' will give you strong, healthy blood.

Iron 'Jelloids' are a perfectly safe remedy under all conditions—do not harm the teeth—are non-constipating, do not "rust" in the stomach.

If you would be healthy, vigorous and strong, you must have rich, healthy blood. To make your blood rich and healthy start a course of Iron 'Jelloids' to-day.

Iron 'Jelloids'

enrich the blood—restore energy

For Women, Iron 'Jelloids' No. 2. For Men, No. 24 (containing Quinine). For Children, No. 1. Of all Chemists, price 1/11 and 2/9 per box, or direct from THE 'JELLOID' CO. (Dept. 72 DB) 205, CITY ROAD, LONDON, E.C.
